

Wayne Reed is the Murchison-Mallory Professor of Physics at Tulane University in New Orleans, with an interdisciplinary faculty appointment in Chemical and Biomolecular Engineering. He is active in fundamental and applied research in polymer science and biologic drugs, and maintains strong ties with industry. He recently published the undergraduate/graduate textbook “Biophysics: Physical Processes underlying the Living State”, Wiley, 2025.